Unable to get a decent Kentucky newspaper to father its scurrilous stuff the junta which is moving beaven and earth to defeat Senator McCreary for the democratic gubernatorial nomination next year, is sending out a print-ed sheet styled "The Parisian," dated Paris, Tennessee, which seeks to show that McCreary was duped into making the race for Governor and that Rufus VanSant, of Ashiand who, the sheet says, will be a candithe reel man at the helm

The bastard sheet, bears the ear-marks of the press bureau of a certain other candidate for governor who sees himself completely left at the post, and as might have been expected from the company of profeshesitate at nothing in seeking to in-jure the chances of one every way his superior. A strange thing about it, is that while dated in Paris, Ten-nessee, the post mark on the envelope in which it is sent, is Newport, Ky, while the union label on the sheet shows it to have been printed in Louisville; so it seems that the best lying talent in three cities must have teen exercised to produce this docu ment

Senator McCreary's attention was called to at Lexington last week, and

TEMPERANCE LESSON

tay School Lasson for Nov. 13, 1910

n Text-Matthew H.B-61. Memor Text-"Watch and Pray, that not into temptation."-Mart

The disciples had accepted Jesus as the Messiah and chosen the way which led to the establishment of the kingdom of God. But they were in the meantime to endure great temptations and difficulties; wars, famines, tribulations, hatred, prisons, death, disasters, earthquakes, pestilences, disciples waxing cold, false prophets arising, stars falling, the sun darkened, the moon turned into blood, the powers of heaven shaken, "such as had not been from the beginning of the world"—then, Christ says to his disciples, "when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh; it is near even at the doors." And he also adds, Watch therefore. Be ye also ready. For ye know not on what day your Lord cometh. kingdom of God. But they were in the what day your Lord cometh.

The parable of the fig tree is a beautiful illustration showing us that while we cannot know when Christ is coming, we have warnings so as to be on guard, as the first signs of spring bid us prepare for the summer. This generation, that is while some who were listening to him should still be alive, as he himself said.

The time to watch is at the beginning of the course that leads to these results. The day of judgment is the end of the course; the choice lies at the beginning.

Those really watched who so foreeaw the future and the true ideal of their lives, that from the beginning they went on toward it by the only path that led to it. They were faithful in every daty. They served their Lord by obedience. They resisted every temptation. They were on their guard against every wile of the devil. They were wide awake, with eyes open to every opportunity, to the signs of the times, to new ways and means, and possibilities.

"Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so do ing. Verily I say unto you. That he shall make itim ruler over all his goods." To those who so watched was entrusted the kingdom of heaven, for themselves and for the world.

Those failed to watch who were so absorbed in their own selfish please ures and gains that they neglected their duties, forgot their Master's interests, were eye-corvants. This fully was intensified by beginning "to est and drink with the drunken." They took the road that led to destruction. Rev. S. W. Hanks, a second or third cousin of Abraham Lincoln, years ago devised a most vivid temperance lec-ture called 'The Black Valley Rati-

"The Crystal River." The Land of the Crystal River is the land which all children enter when they come into this world.

road," which he illustrated by a large chart. It is given in a book called

To live in the Land of the Crystal River, the land of temperance, of selfcontrol, of good character, of highest discfulness, of prosperity, of religion, of heaven, should be the hope and the aim of everyone.

The Black Valley country is situated in an extensive lowland, lying between an elevated and extremely fertile and beautiful region, called the Land of the Crystal River, bounding it upon its upper limits and a vast and unexplored desert forming its lower boundary. Vice and crime abound. Innumerable drunkerds and criminals are found there. Prisons and poor couses take the place of churches and school houses.

The man in the conning tower at the junction of the Black Valley railroad with the railroad to temperance, would guide all youthful travelers to the better way. He urges all to-beek the highest and best life.

We are building a house for our selves, a body in which we must live and a character in which our soul must abide. God would have us possees a perfect body, and to put away verything which injures health, which brings weakness or disease. He would have us form a noble character of which we will not be ashamed, which will fit us for beaven and usefulness. and the company of the good. We cannot cheat God, but we can cheat our selves. By using strong drink in any quantity whatever we are skimping degrading, making poor and weak the house we have got to live in.

Every drunkard was once an innocent child. Every one was first a moderate drinker. No one ever yet be came a drunkard who refused to touch intoxicating drink. Not all who drink moderately do become drunkards, but no one ever became a drunkard who did not first drink moderately.

It is terrible to let a habit begin to routh which will impel us to go on doing wrong against reason, against the power to help others, against love of God, of man, and of country.

"The story is told of a rich young man who sat at a dinner table with a number of friends, and babbled drunken foolishness all the long evening. One of his friends was a court stenographer. Selsed by an idea for the help of his friend, he stenographically reported every word that the latter uttered. The next day he had these notes transcribed and sent to the man imself. The latter, shocked, could caroely believe that he himself had ascended to such a level of imbedity. If this the way a man talks when he is drunk I mean to heap assession in the state of the s
